TRADING STAMP BILL IMPOSES HEAVY LICENSE ON DEALERS

A blow was struck at the popular household industry of collecting trading stamps in the state house of representatives when by a vote of 146 to 17, the Walton bill heavily licensing trading stamp companies was finally passed. Representative Palmer of Schuylkill, speoke in opposition to the bill, but the sponsor, Walton of Lawrence, announced to the house that Mr. Palmer had a particular friend who was interested in trading stamps.

Palmer made the point that the license was so high that it would virtually drive trading stamp companies out of business. The bill provides for county licenses for trading stamp concerns which are to pay $1,000 annually and merchants handling stamps $150, three-fourths of the proceeds to be retained by the county for use in maintenance of roads and bridges and the remainder to be sent to the state treasury.

Harry Lebowitz Will Entertain

Lovers of good clean sport will get a sample of it tonight at the Olympic pool and billiard rooms when that far famed expert, three cushion champion, Ray Palmer, will play Harry Lebowitz, proprietor of the Olympic. Special arrangements have been made for the spectators in the way of seating room and everybody will be made welcome There will be no admission charged. Mr. Palmer besides being the champion player of Ohio, holds many other laurels for his skill as an artist of unusual ability. Mr. Lebowitz is making great preparations for a big night at his place.

Drastic Law

The most drastic law that has ever been introduced in any state in the union against convicted Black Hand society members and gun "toters" is now being prepared by Representative A. C. Stein of Allegheny county.

The penalties provided by the proposed new bill will carry sentences of life imprisonment on conviction of sending letters threatening lives, owning of carrying high explosives or bombs, and not less than one year's imprisonment and a fine of $500 or both, upon conviction of carrying concealed weapons.

The ruthless slaughtering of innocent citizens throughout the state and the rapid growth of the Black Hand society is directly responsible for the introduction of the new measure. Representative Stein says he is extremely confident that the bill will pass both houses and receive the sanction of Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh. For several weeks he has conferred with police officials and sounded the members of the lower and upper bodies.

The great influx of foreign people to this country from every clime under the sun has increased crime to such an extent that it becomes imperative that our laws be changed and that high penalties be meted out to people who carry concealed weapons for the purpose of spilling blood. To be a blackhander will be an offense similar to murder if the Stein bill becomes a law. Stein introduces some freakish bills, but this happens to be a good one and it should become a law.

Rev. Bungard Introduces Bill That is Highly Commendable

Representative B. F. Bungard of Monessen has introduced a bill in the house to make dead beats come clean. It is intended to make men working for an honest wage pay for what they eat or what they wear, or in other words the necessaries of life, or to attach their wages on judgments of any kind obtained. Merchants and others trading in the state of Pennsylvania have long since been up against a hard proposition on collecting money that is honestly coming to them. If a man has nothing in the way of real estate or personal belongings there is no way to get him. He can contract obligations and smile or give promises to the collector. He can work awhile at a place and when collectors get too plentiful, jump out in the dark hours of the night and smile at the people he owes. But should Mr. Bungard's bill become a law, judgment can be obtained and his wages attached on the judgment. The law as introduced follows:

An Act authorizing the attachment of wages or salary on judgments obtained for necessaries limiting the amount of exemption to be claimed and providing for the payment of the costs.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That whenever a judgment is obtained in any court of record or before an alderman, magistrate or justice of the peace upon a contract for furnishing the necessaries of life, and the defendant is a laborer or person engaged in public or private employment, the wages of such laborer or the salary of such person shall be subject to attachment in the hands of the employer.

Section 2. When an attachment execution is issued upon such judgment and wages or salary are attached in the hands of the employer if the amount in the hands of the employer shall be less than the amount of exemption allowed the defendant by law, the debtor shall be entitled in his claim to an exemption for a sum amounting to ninety per centum and no more of the money so attached. No deduction from the fund so attached shall be permitted for costs but said costs shall be paid by the attaching creditor.

Section 3.. No attachment shall issue or be levied under this act unless the debtor has been given thirty (30) days previous notice by registered mail at his last known address of the intention to issue such writ and shall have failed within said period of thirty days to adjust such judgment to the satisfaction of his creditor.

Section 4.The provisions of this act shall apply only to judgments secured upon contracts for the necessaries of life furnished after the passage of this act.

Section 5. All acts or parts of acts supplied hereby or inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Baseball League

A movement is on foot for the reorganization of the Monongahela valley baseball league and plans are being made to call a meeting in the near future to take up the matter.

The circuit this year will be selected from the following towns: New Eagle Monessen, Belle Vernon, Charleroi, Roscoe, Bentleyville, Ellsworth, California, Brownsville, Finleyville and Donora.

Those who have been approached about the matter are enthusiastic about the prospects of a league, and it is believed that a substantial organization can be formed. Charleroi is in good shape with Walter Urben and H. L. Swickey working together. It is asserted the same applies to other teams. At New Eagle Joe Abbot is working up sentiment. He is a brother of Ody Abbot, a Pacific coast star.

THREATENING STATEMENT DISTRESSES A LOCAL WORKMAN

John Casmir of Schoonmaker avenue, is said to be a nervous wreck as a result of threats hurled at him by Charles Coletta. Casmir is a foreman at one of the local mills and the story is to the effect that Coletta went to the mill to solicit work. He is alleged to have asked Casmir for a job, but was refused on account of no work. It is charged that the man became unruly and had to be ejected from the mill.

Later the story goes, he met Casmir on the street and is supposed to have said to him, "If you treat everybody like you treated me, you will find somebody that will fix you." This was construed by Casmir to be a threat at his life, and the latter is so worried that it is understood he is unable to get to work on account of his nervous condition. The hearing had to be postponed until tomorrow morning with the hope that Casmir will be able to appear and testify. Coletta was released on a forfeit.

No Seeds

Striking miners down at Bridgeport, Ohio, have been refused seeds by the secretary of Agriculture for their gardens. The men are contending for an honest wage and are too poor to buy seeds with which to plant their gardens. They appealed to the Government but were turned down.

But the Government has plenty of seeds to send broadcast over the country to supply the gardens of people who are amply able to pay for them. Rich congressmen have seeds to burn. They can swap seeds for votes if they want to, but the poor laboring men down in a mining town in Ohio are turned down coldly without a word of explanation other than that "all congressmen's allotment of seeds have been exhausted." The miners intended to farm the vacant hillsides of eastern Ohio, and in this way provide an honest living for their families while contending for their rights.

No sooner had refusal of the seeds reached Bridgeport than a paper was started for popular subscriptions and in a few hours money enough was raised to plant acres of garden, making the industrious workmen happy.

But what is the lesson to be learned from this action on the part of the government? The seed business has been advertised and when spring arrives thousands of people throughout the country wait and watch for their package of seeds and this refusal at a time like this will have a tendency to make the miners feel that the service they render is of little importance to the government and that there is no interest in their cause. Such acts widen the breach between capitol and labor.

Still Here

An item was published in this paper and in other papers to the effect that the Adams Express company had centralized the Monessen and Charleroi offices at Charleroi. This was a mistake as the Adams office is still here and located in the old National bank building, corner Eighth and Donner, and patrons shipping over the P. R. Amusement Mad

The public is amusement mad. It merely wants its senses tickled. Don't require it to think outside of business hours, any other thinking hurts. It is like the college graduate who said "I don't want to read anything about socialism, it might unsettle me, for I wish to be comfortable in my mind."That is an increasing common attitude in Boston. Let us laugh and be comfortable.

Grand opera and drama require thought, therefore they languish. Musical comedy requires little or no thought, therefore it thrives. In a more artistic community, the theatre is not a place for exciting amusement only; it is rather an institution where life may express itself through a great and serious art.

A few years ago President Lowell bewailed the fact that the taste of college students had so degenerated that they flocked to witness musical comedies, while they neglected serious drama. Their lack of esthetic taste leads them to be easily amused so long as the "show" is lively, gaudy and has plenty of pretty chorus girls. Sometimes, however, the personality of a single dancer or singer is the chief point of appeal, and to exploit that personality the musical comedy manufacturers build around it a crazy structure of songs, dances and impossible plot, which demand no thought from the spectator.

But callow collegians are not the only patrons of these "shows." The "tired business man" whose days are spent in strenuous competition with his fellows, the man whose aim is to have more money each year that he had the last, he, too, seeks relaxation when the tension of the day is over. Since he wishes to banish all thought, he seeks the musical comedy, that he may sit passively and give up his senses to the tilt of music and the thrill of the dances. With him also forgathers the woman who hates to think because it hurts her unused brain. She, too, goes merely to be amused and dazzled by the highly artificial spectacle.

Therefore as long as so large a proportion of the public regard amusement as the only purpose of the theatre, as long as they show a decided aversion to art that requires thinking, so long will musical comedy be popular.

Coming of Mr. Taft

The Chester Times sees it this way: "The visit of former President William H. Taft to this state next week is significant, from the fact that he will speak to the members of the Senate and the House. His visit is made additionally attractive from the fact that he will be the guest of Governor Brumbaugh. Two things can be deduced from these facts, the former President may be coming to urge his own cause for a return to the White House, or he may be going to add some strength to the statement that Governor Brumbaugh may be a candidiate for the Presidency. Primarily the notices sent out announcing the coming of Mr. Taft say that he will deliver a lecture under the auspices of the Harrisburg Academy. But the eyes of the world are upon this distinguished statesman, and his presence in any part of this country is taken as significant, when the leaders of his party are looking around for a suitable candidiate to run for the highest office in the gift of the people in 1916. No matter what the occasion of his visit to this state, he comes with the assurance that he is among friends and he will be accorded a hearty welcome by the distinguished men who compose our state law-making body.

An Imperative Obligation

The mere fact that some boys and girls would much rather work than go to school is not a legitimate reason for permitting them to go to work regularly. Boys and girls are not competent to decide what is best for them. Some children are very dull and schools do comparatively little for them, but they should be taught to read and write and compelled to master the fundamental rules of arithmetic, regardless of their inclinations. After school, children may well be given the opportunity to expend their surplus energies in the performance of various domestic chores. At the same time they should be protected in the rights and privileges and amusements natural to childhood. A child should have no regular work while he is getting an education. This is clear. But the state is under imperative obligations to see that the widows or the deserted mothers or the invalid or crippled fathers are provided for.

An ingenious Frenchman suggests that the air men drop hives of bees on the enemy instead of bombs. He figures than one hive 30,000 bees will put almost as many soldiers out of action instanter. Sending them a honeyed message with a sting, as it were. But just think of being a mile up in the air with a hive of bees, and no haystack to crawl under should they get loose.

Appropriation Bill Held Up

Harrisburg, Pa., April 14—That the appropriation bills to be passed by the legislature will be kept within the diminished revenue of the state and that all of them will be placed in the hands of Governor Brumbaugh in time for him to have for the consideration of them as a whole was announced by Chairman Woodward of the house appropriation committee today.

Chairman Woodward said the general appropriation bill is being held up in order to place therein every item necessitated by the passage of such laws as the workingmen's compensation and others of the kind.

The jitney bus bill will be amended so as to reduce the 10 per cent. tax on gross revenues from 5 per cent. and cut down the bond required on all cars from $10,000 to half that amount.

ODD BITS OF NEWS

Washington, D. C.—Few people realize how many hire out on farms for field labor. In this country there are a million and a half women field workers, more than all the women dressmakers, milliners, women tailors, hat, cap, collar, cuff and shirt workers combined.

Turbotville, Pa.—William Grittner, a shoe dealer, fitting a shoe on John Barlow, a customer, grasped the upper and bade Barlow "push hard." Barlow pushed hard. Grittner's grasp slipped, the heel of the shoe struck Grittner's body, breaking three ribs and causing internal injuries.

Montgomery, W. Va.—Rob Ross, state prisoner, working on the highway in Kanawha county, has tendered to Governor Hatfield an offer to serve out the time of his friends, Ed Adkins, if the governor will give Adkins a pardon. Adkins is now ill in a hospital. Adkins' time will be up in 90 days, Ross' time in 10.

Chicago, Ill.—The health department has just discovered the source of the great quantities of dirt which in spite of the clean streets, fill the air on windy days. From the roofs of three down town buildings fourteen wagonloads of dirt and rubbish—more than was swept from four and one half miles of streets—were removed one day last week. Hereafter the roofs of all buildings must be kept clean.

Piedmont, W. Va.—A family passed through Piedmont on a Baltimore & Ohio train last week, consisting of 21 members. The father was 38 years old, the mother 36 and there were nine pairs of twins. Fourteen of the children passed free, being under the age limit.

NEW BOUNTY LAW IN EFFECT

The new bounty law which has just been signed by Governor Brumbaugh takes the further payment of bounties on predatory birds and animals out of the hands of the county commissioners. The law was framed with a view to protecting the state from further frauds from this source.

It has been estimated that the state has been defrauded out of $50,000 in the payment of bounties during the past two years. The threatened exposures in Beaver and Lebanon counties, the ramification of the Northern weasel fraud plot in Jefferson, Elk and other northern counties have begun to come to light and in less than ten days frauds involving more than $10,000 have been uncovered. Game Protector Charles Baum arrested a man in Lebanon county last week, charged with defrauding the state of more than $1,200 in Lebanon county alone.

Under the new law no bounty money can be paid under the old law and all pelts must be submitted to the game commission and marked by that body. The bounty on wild cats has been increased from $4 to $6, the weasel bounty has been reduced from $2 to $1, while the bounties on foxes are $2, and $1 has been placed on mink.

All hawks have been cut off the list, as it was found that neither the men who were killing them, nor the justice knew what kind of hawks were being killed, and as a result, many beneficial species were killed, while there were hundreds of claims paid for chicken and turkey heads.

Salaried game protectors may take bounty affidavits without fee from the claimants who appear in person in such cases, or the claimant may appear before a justice to take the necessary affidavits. In the latter case both the pelt and the affidavit must be sent to the game commissioner at Harrisburg. The pelt will then be marked and returned with the check for the bounty.

It is claimed by the county commissioners that Washington county has been a victim of these bounty frauds in the past. Many hawks were killed and bounties claimed where the law does not provide for any bounty on the species killed. Many claims have been presented to the Washington county commissioners from bounties on goshawks killed in this county. These were refused for the reason that the goshawk does not inhabit this section of the state and never has. It was also known that there were several weasel frauds. One resident of the county was suspected of raising weasels. Many affidavits were also made on red squirrel pelts.

Willard a Hero of the South

Jacksonville, Fla. April 13—They certainly are strong for a white champion in the south. This trip of Jess Willard's from Havanna to New York is almost a parade. There is a cheering crowd at every station. The champion cannot even grab enough time to have the porter shave him, as every little burg wants a look and a speech.

The south hasn't been stirred to such excitement in years as it has by the defeat of Jack Johnson. Shouting screaming, excited people turn out at every stop and no king could get a stronger reception than Willard.

Jess got an ovation during the twenty minutes that the train stopped here.

Motion picture films of the big fight are in bond on their way through the United States to Toronto. There the pictures will be developed and shown for the first time. The promoters are confident they will get a reversal of opinion on the present United States ruling of sending films from one state to another. Herein lies the hope of tremendous profits.

Willard has accepted the first challenge offered him for the world's championship, when he agreed to meet Frank Lyons, former champion of 10 rounds a year hence.

Lyons is a policeman here, having left the prize ring four years ago. He mixed up with Willard during the latter's amateur days at Elk City, Oklahoma, July 4, 1911, winning a decision over the champion. Lyons is 33 years old, six feet, four and a half inches in height and weighs 275 pounds. He has a reach of a half inch over Willard. He was a member of Jeffries' training force before the Reno fight and has appeared with Langford and Jeannette.

When Billy Sunday Came to Town

SYNOPSIS.

Reginald Nelson, a young Englishman of high birth, comes to this country to win fame and fortune On the steamer he meets Albert Townley, a minister, Mrs Graham and her pretty daughter, Joy.

Reginald goes to Bronson, home of his three new acquaintances, where he learns that Joy's father is a leading lawyer, who is the mainstay of a corrupt political ring He gets a job

"You poor fool," exclaimed the other, "those girls are the very pick of the lot, and the rotten city administration knew it."

"Right again," interposed the rate clerk, further. "I think I saw your girl among those who were jugged, didn't I?"

"I am not ashamed to have her put in jail for trying to improve conditions in that factory," replied the bill clerk stoutly. "I tell you it is no wonder the Socialists carried two wards at the last election."

Reginald remembered the request of Joy Graham in her father's office and her desire to visit some girls at the jail.

"Perhaps I might take them some flowers for her," he said to himself.

When they left the office Reginald joined the bill clerk.

"I have a friend," began Reginald abruptly, "who wanted to take some flowers to those girls who have been put in jail."

"I thought you were a stranger here, sir," answered the bill clerk, somewhat ungraciously.

"I met Mrs Graham and her daughter on the boat on my voyage across the Atlantic," replied Reginald, "and I happen to know that Miss Joy Graham would be glad if the girls had some flowers. I thought if you would go with me to the jail this evening I will bring some flowers and have them distributed as a gift."

The bill clerk looked closely at Reginald much surprised at his proposition. After a short silence he answered in a somewhat more cordial tone. "That will be all right The girls will appreciate the kindness I will meet you at the Y. M C. A. steps, and we will visit the jail together."

That evening the imprisoned strikers enjoyed greatly their gift of flowers brought to them in the name of "a young lady of Bronson."

The next evening after Reginald Nelson had accepted an invitation to attend the Central church he was walking slowly in the direction of the home of Allan Rutledge, the minister The immigrant had been much impressed with the personality and cordial spirit of the Iowa clergyman and he was anticipating an evening of pleasure in his home

Reginald Nelson was feeling peculiarly happy that evening He had now completely mastered his duties at the railroad office and could perform them with ease so that his position as a clerk was secure. Besides, on that day he had two callers at the office. Mr. Townley had called for a brief visit and congratulated him on his success in getting a foothold so quickly.

"I told you," said the minister, smilingly, "that you would find life and all that life means in the new world."

But Reginald Nelson's other visitor was the one who had really shed a glow over that entire afternoon. To his astonishment and to the intense interest of his fellow clerks, Joy Graham entered the office and enquired for him. He was diligently at work in the agent's small apartment, busy at the typewriter, when she called, and the rate clerk ushered her into Reginald's presence.

"Good afternoon," she exclaimed, cordially, as she greeted him. "This is where you are working, is it? I hope you like your place."

The immigrant was visibly embarrassed. Joy Graham went on, in an apologetic tone:

"Excuse me, Mr. Nelson, for troubling you at this time, but I have quite a favor to ask of you. Our Tourist club meets this week on Thursday evening at my home and we are to visit London," repeated the girl. "We would like to have you with us and give us a talk on your great English city. Can you come?"

"What is this Tourist club?" he asked.

"A number of the young people of our church meet every two weeks, and we have been going around the world in imagination We have traveled through Ireland and Scotland, and we are now visiting England. I remembered your descriptions of London, and we would all be delighted to have you with us next Thursday evening." Joy Graham smiled at him and made a little bow as she concluded.

"It will give me pleasure to meet with you," he responded.

CHAPTER III.

A Vital Shock For Reginald.

THE home in which Allan Rutledge lived was in an imposing building in one of the best residential districts in Bronson. Reginald rang the bell and was greeted by the minister himself, who was evidently awaiting him, and who warmly welcomed him.

"This is my young son, Abraham," said the minister, introducing Reginald to a young boy of about three years of age. "He is a little fellow, but he is called after a great man. He is a namesake of Abraham Lincoln."

Reginald noticed Allan Rutledge regarding his little son with tear moistened eyes.

"My hope and prayer for my boy," he said earnestly in answer to the other's look, "is that he will be worthy to bear the name of Abraham Lincoln."

"He will be a noble man assuredly if he acquires a character like the noble Lincoln," responded Reginald, becoming serious. "Do you know that it was the life of Abraham Lincoln which first gave me a glimpse of what democracy means and of what life really is."

They were interrupted by a lady entering the room carrying a baby in her arms. She was a gracious looking woman, quite young in appearance, with light flaxen hair and lustrous blue eyes

"Come in and meet the young Englishman I have been telling you about Mr. Nelson, this is my wife," said Rutledge.

"I am pleased to meet you, Mrs Rutledge. What a lovely baby you have!" he added, looking with admiration at the child in its mother's arms.

Allan Rutledge took the child in his arms, saying: "This is our daughter, Anna. She, too, is called after a noble woman. Do you remember in the life of Abraham Lincoln that pathetic romance of his early days?"

"You mean the romance of Lincoln and Anne Rutledge?" responded Reginald quickly.

"Yes," said the minister. "Anne Rutledge was the sister of my grandfather, and I am proud of my Rutledge blood."

"You may well be," exclaimed the Englishman. "I would rather have the blood of the Rutledges in my veins than that of titled lords."

Allan Rutledge thought that the young man spoke the last words rather bitterly.

When they were left alone Allan Rutledge turned to his guest seriously and said, "I expect you have brought a church letter with you from your old home."

He Held the Close Attention of Them All.

"No," answered the other stammeringly. "I—I did not go to church much in England."

"Ah!" responded the other in a somewhat disappointed tone.

"My family, of course, were church people," replied Reginald, looking frankly at the minister, "and I was confirmed in the Episcopalian Church of England as a boy, but I lost faith in churches."

"Lost faith in churches!"

"Listen to me, Dr. Rutledge," said the young Englishman, speaking with such intensity that the minister looked at him closely. "There was a temperance bill before parliament last winter which would have been a blessing to every part of England. This bill was defeated through the opposition of clergymen who owned brewery stocks. More than that," continued the youth, clinching his fist and unconsciously raising his voice, "our archbishop of Canterbury was lately asked what his views were in regard to the labor problem that presses for solution in England, and he answered unabashed that he worked seventeen hours a day over the organization of the church and had no time left to think of the labor problem. I liked Keir Hardie's reply to the archbishop," continued Reginald after a pause. "He plainly told him that a religion which demanded seventeen hours a day for organization and left no time for a single thought about starving and despairing men and women and children had no message for this age."

Allan Rutledge changed the subject again by speaking of his native state of Iowa.

OUCH! LUMBAGO?

Try Musterole. See How Quickly It Relieves

You just rub MUSTEROLE in briskly, and usually the pain is gone—a delicious, soothing comfort comes to take its place. MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Use it instead of mustard plaster. Will not blister.

Doctors and nurses use MUSTEROLE and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Colds of the Chest (it often prevents Pneumonia).

At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

Be sure you get the genuine MUSTEROLE. Refuse imitations—get what you ask for. The Musterole Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

Prisoners Fined in Police Court

Paul Fentella and Carol Contretovich were the first prisoners to face the burgess this morning. They were both charged with fighting. It appears Contretovich went to work for Fentella yesterday morning and the two men had a scrap. Contretovich went home, waited for Fentella in the evening and when he appeared hit him. Both men then got into the fight hot and heavy with the result that both were arrested. At the hearing they were fined $5.00 and costs each. They paid.

Mr and Mrs. Joseph King of Wild Cat Hollow were the next to have a hearing. They were charged with disorderly conduct. Mr. King had been hit on the head with a beer bottle, cutting his ear nearly off, breaking his nose, and he had other minor bruises about the head and face. When arrested Mr. King said that his wife had hit him, but this morning he said he did not know who had done the act. The burgess discharged the woman, but King was fined $1.00 and costs or $3.00. He also had a doctor bill of $3.00. He was given until tomorrow evening to make up the money as he only had $2.50 with him.

Leon Colas of Summit avenue was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $1.00 and costs or $3.00, or two days. He could not pay the fine and will have to serve the time unless friends come to his aid.

Bernard McCarran of Pittsburgh came to town yesterday to look for work. He is a carpenter by trade. He took on too much tanglefoot as soon as he arrived in town. This morning he was discharged and told to get out of town.

Justice Varies in two Towns

According to the Charleroi Mail justice in Charleroi is of a different breed than that handed out in Monessen. The automobile ordinance over there seems to be an instrument to bring smiles on the faces of drivers who want to speed a little. The Mail of yesterday says:

"Two automobile drivers, one from Monessen and the other from Charleroi were hailed before the burgess on Monday, charged with violations in the driving of their cars. Both were discharged, according to the custom with the information ringing in their ears that if their offense were repeated, a stiff fine would be imposed.

D. R. Duvall, president of council, was forced to hear one case, that of J. J. Kilroy of Monessen, because of the inability of Burgess Woodward to be present at the time the case was caller. Mr. Kilroy talked very nicely and promised to obey to the letter the mandates of the law.

Mr. Newlon was given his hearing by Burgess Woodward. He was charged with not blowing his horn at a corner."

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic

Craig's Drug Store.

NOTICE

Why buy gas in barrels when you can have "76 gas" put right in your car at the low price of 18c a gallon, and save evaporation of from 2 to 4 gallons on the barrel. We also handle all kinds of oils and greases at low prices.
